An introduction to Makó

Makó is a town in south-east Hungary along the river Maros. The town that used to be known primarily for the onions grown in the region is today visited by tourists for its tourism attractions. The town has a unique architectural heritage as its cityscape dominated by 12 buildings designed by Kossuth Prize holder Imre Makovecz. The most well-known one of these, the one attracting the largest numbers of tourists, is Hagymatikum Spa whose shape illustrates one of the most valuable treasures of the Carpathian Basin, that is, the thermal water gushing out of the depth of the earth.

The town treats the participants of the 30th Tusványos event to special local tastes, smells and atmosphere, visitors can taste mangalica ham with onion marmalade and local ewe cheese at the Town's stand, accompanied by the beautiful flavours of the local Kontyos fruit wines. Very pleasant chats with the town's representatives about the town will also be on the menu on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, so visitors can learn a lot of interesting and new details about the town.

Golden Moments (Puskás Academy)

Speaker: Péter Bozsik (former captain of the national team)

Péter Bozsik is the son of the 101 times representative of the national team, member of the Golden Team, former captain of the National Football Association, József Bozsik. Although he has never achieved the level of success his father enjoyed as a player, he however managed to be a champion with Zalaegerszeg, and then he also worked as the captain of the Hungarian national team. At the time being, he is the Senior Coach of the NB III Komárom team, sports expert on the television channel M4. His biggest sorrow is that he lost his father as a young man and thus the really deep discussions were missed between them.

SMART on weekdays

From the Foucault-pendulum to the self-driving cars

What comes after enlightenment? We begin to understand and show what functions how, but how can it be translated into our day-to-day lives? The Wednesday program will deal with this issue in the example of the everyday of a small Hungarian settlement. It will be presented and explained, how and from what a small village will become “SMART”, which tools you may use, how life might be changed by 5G, or whether or not self-driving cars can help or cause the more problems? How settlements will look like in a couple of years. This will be the focus of the discussions, presentations and shows where the future can be seen. The day’s programme is hosted by Alsómocsolád, a little village community in Baranya County, where enlightenment is over, there is a Foucault pendulum and people are getting prepared to receive self-driving cars!

14.00-14.15 Are we SMART?!

Anikó Balogh (telcom house leader, Alsómocsolád)

14.15-14.45

Interaktív 5G

A city planner application is presented, where properties and real estates can be displayed with the help of augmented reality and virtual realty at the proposed locations. Users may walk around it, magnify it or look at the objects from various aspects and under different conditions which can be appreciated at a later point in time during a public hearing or the discussions with the property development company. Communication affecting physical sensations is presented: remote, virtual shapes can be placed „virtually” in the same space where the user is situated. In lack of space, two users can view the presentation in the same space, or around the table, but such a show can be augmented to a distance of several countries in between with the help of the 5G. A solution which fits for educational industrial/remote control.

Everyday Studies

Let's build a virtual lab!

Unfathomable, mind-boggling, unlimited – these three attributes can be given to both the human brain and the current contemporary innovation process, but what if the two greatest wonders of the world would unite? Before this happens, a bridge must be built helping to perceive the constantly changing world surrounding us? How this world can be modelled and presented? We get an extraordinary lesson from the ELTE Vice Rector about these issues, not only for educationists!

István Németh (Vice Rector, ELTE Savaria Centre)
